TIPS FROM PENN STATE MASTER GARDENERS

HELLO BEECH MOUNTAIN GARDENERS!

I hope you have been enjoying the beautiful weather. I know that my plants are doing very well. This past week Zachary and Kathy took me on a tour of their plot at the Butler Township Community Garden. The garden is about 4.5 miles from Beech Mountain a 10 minute drive.

The garden is a wonderful community asset available to us. While most beech mountain residents lack enough sunlight for serious vegetable gardening, the community garden has all the necessary elements including good soil, lots of sunshine, water, and fencing to keep the deer out.

If you haven't seen it, this is a great time of year to make a visit. The participating gardeners are growing an amazing variety of flowers and vegetables. Some gardeners have carefully arranged plots, while some others have more eclectic tastes. The garden is at its peak now.

THE BUTLER TOWNSHIP "HUMAN NATURE" COMMUNITY GARDEN

is a 1.3 acre community and demonstration garden that was established in the Spring of 2009 within the Township's Freedom Park complex in Drums (415 W. Butler Drive, just behind the Valley East Little League Field). The garden is operated and managed by the Center for Landscape Design in partnership with the township.

The garden includes nearly 100 rental plots that may be leased for the season by individuals or organizations. Sizes range from small (60 square feet) to extra-large (250 square feet), with all sizes in-between. Several raised beds are also available to accommodate elderly individuals who are not up the physical challenge of bending down. Water stations with hoses are well-distributed throughout the garden, which is surrounded by an eight-foot-high deer fence to keep out the big critters. All gardeners receive the combination to the shed, which can be used to store tools. A large hoop house is also available to anyone wishing to get an early start on spring seedlings. All gardeners must agree to rental rules and regulations, including agreement to participate in at least one community garden clean-up session.

Demonstration gardens are designed to provide examples of important sustainable design concepts, as well as inspiration and ideas for homeowners. These include an herb garden, pollinator garden, fruit orchard, perennial garden, and a rain garden, as well as several other demonstration features that teach people how to reduce water consumption and stormwater runoff.

Approximately 1/4 acre of the community garden is dedicated to learning the basic concepts of sustainable agriculture and organic gardening. This area is the focus of our "Garden Discovery" Summer Camp program, where children learn to plant and maintain their own gardens. It is also where food is grown to be sold as part of the CLDS "Growing Markets" Program, which is designed to teach students and aspiring agri-entrepreneurs about sustainable agriculture and small-scale food business entrepreneurship. A new education shelter doubles as our outdoor classroom and green roof demonstration feature.

If you are interested you can visit the garden's web page to learn more about how you can obtain a lease.
